Ready to turn data into decisions and help shape how resources are deployed across a dynamic clinical operations organization? As Operations Project Manager, you will help shape strategic workforce and resource planning across the Americas. You will combine analytical thinking, digital innovation, and cross-functional collaboration to strengthen forecasting, optimize resources, and translate complex information into meaningful insights. This is an opportunity to influence strategic decisions, advance smarter ways of working, and help align resources with evolving portfolio and business priorities.

About the Role

Key Responsibilities

- Lead strategic workforce planning and resource optimization, aligning capacity with portfolio priorities across Americas SMM.
- Drive capacity forecasting, scenario planning, budget management, and internal and external resource utilization.
- Apply data analytics and predictive modeling to strengthen forecasting and identify operational risks and opportunities.
- Develop dashboards and decision-support tools that translate complex data into actionable leadership insights.
- Advance automation and digital innovation to simplify processes, reduce manual reporting, and improve decision-making.
- Partner across functions to enable agile resource deployment, financial stewardship, and execution of strategic priorities.
- Establish performance measures and data governance frameworks that strengthen transparency, consistency, and operational effectiveness.

Essential Requirements

- Bachelor's degree or equivalent relevant experience in business, operations, analytics, life sciences, or a related field.
- Demonstrated experience in strategic workforce planning, resource management, capacity forecasting, and operational planning.
- Strong analytical skills with experience translating complex data into clear, actionable recommendations for leadership.
- Experience using data visualization, analytical, or modeling tools, including Power BI, Excel, Python, or comparable platforms.
- Demonstrated ability to manage budgets, performance measures, resource allocation, and data-driven operational decisions.
- Strong communication and collaboration skills, with experience influencing stakeholders across complex, cross-functional organizations.

Desirable Requirements

- Experience working within pharmaceutical operations or a comparable life sciences environment.
- Advanced experience in workforce analytics, including resource forecasting, capacity modeling, and data-driven workforce planning.
